Frequently asked questions

Where is Himlaung located?

Himlung Himal is located in the Manaslu region of Nepal, specifically in the Manang district. It is situated northeast of the Annapurna range, near the Tibetan border. The mountain is roughly 140-150 kilometers from Kathmandu.

Do I need a permit?

Yes. We take care of all necessary permits, including the Himlaung climbing permit, Trek permits, and National park fees.

Where will we sleep?

In Kathmandu: Hotels or lodges

During trekking: Teahouses or tents

Base Camp and above: Tents

Will I have an internet or phone signal?

There may be limited or no signal during the trek and no internet at higher camps. We may carry a satellite phone for emergencies.

Do I need travel insurance?

Yes, mandatory. It must cover high-altitude climbing and helicopter rescue.

Is Himlaung a technical climb?

Yes, it is. You will need to use ropes, crampons, an ice axe, and climb on snow and ice. It is not a beginner's mountain.

Do I need previous climbing experience?

Yes. You should have done at least one high altitude climb before, and be comfortable using ropes, walking with crampons, and using a jumar.

Will there be training before the climb?

Yes. We do refresher training at base camp and check that everyone is confident before heading up.

Do you accommodate any type of diet?

Our meals are cooked from fresh meat and products. We provide traditional, vegetarian, vegan, pescatarian, halal, and other meals, and we can also cater to any dietary requirements you might have (ex. gluten-free). Any of them is nutritious and versatile, specially designed for mountain conditions by nutritionists.
